

NewsLeader was there

WARM WELCOME:

Nicole Croteau had a big smile as everybody checked in

IN THE CROWD:

The crowd mingles at Horizons prior to the art auction

CHEERS:

Cameray executive director Susan Roberts, volunteer Mena Perrotta and accountant Mary Bolton

TV STAR:

CTV Vancouver reporter Renu Bakshi before taking the auction microphone

Mountain full of fun

Fun, frivolity, friendship and doing good for charity emanated from atop Burnaby Mountain at Horizons Restaurant on Sept. 20.

Cameray Child and Family Services held its Art on the Horizon art and silent auction fundraiser that evening. Although the numbers are still being tallied up, executive director Susan Roberts was proud to say more money was raised this year than at last year's event.

Roberts and the organization were "thrilled" to have CTV Vancouver reporter Renu Bakshi act as emcee for the evening. Brad Scott of Maynard Auctioneers also volunteered his services for the art auction.

Cameray's sponsors are Bruce Orr, Winners, Calkins & Burke, Vancity, Fine Art Framing, Chevron and the NewsLeader.

PHOTOGRAPHS BY ANDREA BARONE

UP FOR AUCTION:

Some of the paintings up for auction

POLITICAL CHAT:

Ted Almas chats with Burnaby city councillor Gary Begin

CASH MAN:

Volunteers Kyla Hingwing, Nicole Roberts and Chelsea Trenzok

MAKING MUSIC:

Nicole Roberts tries to entice bidders on a guitar signed by Vancouver Canucks from the 1980s. It worked. The guitar went for $1,000

BIG LAUGH:

Emcee Renu Bakshi of CTV Vancouver and NewsLeader publisher Tracy Keenan

MASTERPIECE:

Volunteer Melanie Hesselden shows off a work by Burnaby artist Andre Petterson

ALL SMILES:

Cameray co-ordinator Tracey Rusnak and Zdeno Rusnak